MONTREAL, QUEBEC--CN is pleased to announce today that it has reached new tentative collective agreements with the Canadian Auto Workers (CAW) union.

CN is withholding details of the three-year agreements until they are ratified. The CAW expects to schedule ratification votes early this week.

CAW shopcraft, intermodal and clerical members remain on strike at CN, as they have been since Feb. 20, pending ratification of new agreements.

CN has also reached a tentative agreement covering owner/operator truck drivers represented by the CAW. These drivers are not on strike.

CN continues operations to serve its customers.
